

Seminář zahraničního hosta Juana F. Ganelly

22.8.2025 - | Fakulta humanitních studií UK

Srdečně vás zveme na seminář s názvem Doing Collaborative Ethnography with Ethnocultural Minorities: A multidisciplinary study of Spanish Gitano and Romanian Roma, který na FHS uvede profesor Juan F. Gamella z Katedry sociální antropologie Univerzity v Granadě.

Nedávné výzkumy v romské menšině, na nichž se Juan F. Gamella podílel, zahrnují například autonomní řešení konfliktů, příslušku jako řečový akt nebo jejich sociální sítě. Mezi Gitanos - španělskými Romy - profesor Gamella také zkoumal smíšená manželství, depresi nebo přístup ke škole a vzdělání.

Anotace přednášky v angličtině

In an open format, the seminar will review the approaches, methods, and sources used in the long-term study of two related yet distinct minorities that converged in Spain in the 21st century: The Gitanos/Calé in Andalusia and Madrid and the Roma Korturare studied in Spain and Transylvania. We will discuss the role of Gitano and Roma friends, students, and assistants in combining ethnography and ethnohistory with historical demographic sources. We will also discuss the use of photography and the role of the family photographer. The seminar will demonstrate the rich possibilities for comparison between the two groups, which exhibit considerable similarities as well as key differences.

One of our main research topics is what we call "Cultures of Reproduction," which includes marriage, gender, and kinship systems that have generated amazing reproductive success. These systems have helped maintain a way of life in the face of stigmatization, persecution, and racialization. Through their agency and resilience, Gitanos and Korturare Roma have created their own history, transforming mainstream religious and social institutions to suit their needs while producing cultural forms of transnational relevance.

The seminar is open to both graduate and undergraduate students, as well as other colleagues interested in the methodology of studying marginalised groups.
