9.6.2026 - | Exportní garanční a pojišťovací společnost

Prague will become the global hub of export and project finance from June 9 to 11, 2026, as it hosts TXF Global 2026: Export, Agency & Project Finance, the world's largest gathering of professionals in export credit, project finance, and development finance. The conference is being held in partnership with EGAP, the Czech export credit agency.

Held at the Hilton Prague under the theme "Financing the Future - With a Touch of Magic," the event will welcome more than 1,500 participants from around the world. Attendees will include representatives of export credit agencies, development finance institutions, commercial banks, investors, exporters, EPC contractors, and legal advisers.

The three-day programme will feature expert discussions on key challenges facing the global economy, including energy security, supply chain resilience, European industrial policy, and the future of international cooperation among export credit agencies and financial institutions.

"TXF Global represents a unique opportunity to showcase the Czech Republic as an active player in export finance while discussing how export credit agencies can help companies succeed in a rapidly changing geopolitical and economic environment," said David Havlíček, CEO of EGAP.

David Havlíček will also participate in a panel discussion on European cooperation and the future of export support across Europe. His contribution will focus on the Czech Initiative, EGAP's proposal to strengthen cooperation among European export credit agencies and enhance the competitiveness of European exporters in global markets.

Experts from across Europe and beyond will discuss current challenges, emerging opportunities, and ways to deepen coordination among institutions that support international trade and investment.

On June 9, Marek Dlouhý, Member of the Board of Directors of EGAP, will moderate the TXF Czech Market Roundtable, a discussion dedicated to the needs of Czech exporters and investors when using EGAP's products and services. The session will provide a platform for sharing experiences and exploring ways to further develop export support instruments for Czech businesses.

The conference will also feature numerous networking opportunities designed to connect key market participants and foster new business partnerships. TXF Global 2026 will further reinforce Prague's growing role as a venue for international dialogue on trade finance, investment, and sustainable economic development.

EGAP (Export Guarantee and Insurance Corporation) is the Czech Republic's state-owned export credit agency specializing in the insurance of political and commercial risks associated with the financing of Czech exports, services, and investments abroad.
