

Managing water abstraction

8.4.2026 - | Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs

How government, water companies and the Environment Agency make sure there is enough water for future needs of both people and the environment.

The government, water companies and the Environment Agency have written a number of plans and strategies. Together they make sure there is enough water for future needs of both people and the environment. This document explains how they do this.

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/managing-water-abstraction>