

Unique Czech-Korean-Polish Memorandum is signed. Best practises will be shared globally

"I am very pleased that our Korean and Polish colleagues are as keen as we are to deepen their knowledge of export finance and insurance. This cooperation opens the door to a deeper understanding of the many diverse systems in place. It is an exchange of experience that can bring concrete results to our exporters. EGAP certainly belongs to the top of the industry, but those who remain passive toward further development cannot stay there in the long run", explains David Havlíček, Chairman of the EGAP Board of Directors.

„Cooperation between our countries is natural in many areas – where we have complementary competences, development opportunities and needs, and especially in the field of defence, energy, including nuclear and climate transformation, as well as in the automotive industry. The combination of our financial strength, market knowledge and the ability to mobilise business to engage in the modernisation of Ukraine can also bring excellent results, where KUKÉ was the earliest export support agency to resume its activity after the Russian aggression, and the Polish territories bordering Ukraine can be a safe hub for companies wishing to rebuild this country. Together we can also operate in third markets, for example by supporting infrastructure investments in developing countries," said Janusz Władyczak, CEO of the Polish export credit agency KUKÉ.

EGAP or Export Guarantee and Insurance Corporation a.s. is a state-owned credit insurance company focusing on market-uninsurable political and commercial risks associated with the financing of exports of goods, services and investments from the Czech Republic.

Korea Trade Insurance Corporation (K-SURE) was established in July 1992 under the Trade Insurance Act for the goal of promoting trade and overseas investment of Korean enterprises with the mission to boost the national competitiveness.

KUKÉ offers solutions to help entrepreneurs safely grow their business domestically and internationally. We are creative, respond quickly to changes in the environment and prioritize client interests.
